It isn't often you meet an accomplished custom luxury homebuilder just as excited about taking on a remodeling project as building a new home. Edinburgh Custom Homes is one of the few top luxury homebuilders in the Dallas area with specialized remodeling expertise.

Meet John Gilley, owner of Edinburgh Custom Homes. In addition to holding the National Association of Home Builders' (NAHB) prestigious Graduate Master Builder certification and Certified Green Professional green homebuilder affiliation, John has earned designation as a Certified Aging-in-Place Specialist.

He has assisted homeowners in transforming their home to match their lifestyle dreams and goals in many neighborhoods throughout Dallas and the surrounding areas.

John brings his creativity and artistic skills to Edinburgh's remodeling services. Completed projects have ranged from renovating entire homes, to updating kitchens and baths including conveniences like motion sensor lighting and USB ports to keep devices charged.

The company also excels at transforming unused outdoor space into refreshing new living areas. Examples include outdoor gourmet kitchens, outdoor living rooms complete with fireplace, multi-media entertainment systems, automatic retractable screens to allow for care-free outdoor enjoyment, a sportcourt, and even a private al fresco bath and shower.

"We start with a comprehensive consultation with the client to discuss their renovation goals and identify opportunities that are unique and suitable to the property, whether it's one they currently own or are considering for acquisition and renovation. Then we take a whole team approach, collaborating with architects and interior design partners to match the style and preferences of our client," says John.

BUILDING HOMES, NOT HOUSES

Edinburgh Custom Homes is a family-run boutique homebuilding company. John started the company with his wife Barbara. Both enjoyed fruitful careers in banking and finance, but the couple dreamed of being homebuilders.

After years of planning and working in the residential real estate industry for 15 years, they founded Edinburgh in 2005.

Guided by John and Barbara's Christian principles, the Edinburgh approach is to treat people fairly and with integrity, respect, courtesy and professionalism throughout every aspect of remodeling or building. They never lose sight of that fact that they are creating homes, not houses, to be distinctively personal enclaves of comfort and pleasure for families to grow, gather with friends, and make cherished memories.

"We partner with our clients to design and build distinctive homes from the best materials, while providing an exceptional customer experience. We value their trust and look forward to exceeding their expectations," says John.

The relationships they build with clients begins with listening to their wishes and ideas, tailoring the customer experience to their desired level of involvement, then master crafting a home down to the finest details.

The value the Gilleys place on building relationships extends beyond their clients. They are committed to being good neighbors on their clients' behalf throughout the construction process.

"We are also honored to have long relationships with our trade partners. We have great respect for their skills, and appreciate the quality product they allow us to deliver to our clients," adds Barbara.

When you build or renovate with Edinburgh Custom Homes, there's a lot of heart behind the home.
